The Case of Bedford, Pinu and Queenan.

The bearing in the general term in the case of Jeach Neverson, alias Babe Bedford, Sandy The learning in the general term in the case of Jesoph Neverson, alias Babe Bedford, Sandy Pine and Edward Queenan, convicted of the number of George P. Hirth, in April inst, was concluded last Saturday and the decision reserved. While the counsel for the defendants filed numerous exceptions, some fifteen in all, the principal one was the action of the court in permitting the government to examine two witnesses that the defended did not receive two fall days notice of before trial. Though the court was adjourned one day in order to make the testimony competent in the opinion of the court is mandatory in its terms and that the notice can only be legal when given two days before trial, and not two days before the witnesses are examined.

The Book Reception.

The entertainment to-night at Lincoln hall premises to be in every respectationizable. The students of the Deal-Mute college give some characteristic shadow pantomimes, very mirth-provoking. Mrs. Jarley's exhibitions are always popular, and although Mrs. Camp may not be, as she will doubtless chain to be, the original as she will doubtless claim to be, the original Jarley, yet she certainly will be the perfected of Jarley, as losts of provious audiences can testify. The tableaux will be presented by ladies and gentlemen of Georgetown, who have heretofore won lattrels by their charming exhibitions. The manes of these who will furnish the musical and literary part of the programme are too well known to Washington andiences to need further notice. The object of the entertainment appeals with even greater force than its attractions to the patronage of the public. A reading-room well-supplied the public. A reading-room well-supplied with good, native and foreign periodicals is greatly needed here in Washington, where so many young men from all sections of the country congregate. There is also a great demand for a first-class circulating library.
